Wedding Nearly Every Hour Yester day-Mrs. Logan Soon to Start on Her European Tour

There is no more charming topic for discussion among women these beautiful autumn days than that of wedding finery for brides to be, and many happy hints for novelty in the decoration of chancels and drawing rooms for the scenes of solemn vows are heard. They "talk the fine weather," the pretty maids and matrons on meeting, then, presto! satia and talle, and flowers and laces, are the all-ab-

The troussens of Miss Ethel Stokes, one of the millionaire brides of the season, is ecstatically characterized as "ideal" by all. Her wedding gown, which will be denned October 31, at Lenox, is of ivery white satin, having a plaited train many yards long, and festioned across the front of the skirt is a rarely beautiful scarf of lace caught with orange blossoms. Lace covers the low necked bedice, and is gathered about the throat with a high softm stock. The long, full stevers are of satin appliqued at the wrists with lace. The tuile veil is edged with pointe lace and fastened with orange blossoms.

The bridesmaids' gowns will be of gold colored penu de sole, cut Louis XVI style, with guthered plain skirts, jacket bodices and white chiffen fichus, the bottom being miniatures in jeweled frames. Their wide-brimmed black velvet hats have plames and rosettes of gold color.

Gunton Temple Memorial Church was crowded last evening with the friends of Miss Maude Carter Swormstedt and Mr. George Aflen Prevost, whose marriage took place at 6 o'clock. The chancel was artistically decorated

The chancel was artistically decorated with palms and cosmos blooms, the monograms of the bappy couple, designed in gay-colored chrysauthemiums, being suspended on opposite sides. Mendelssohn's wedding march, played with marked strength and betiliancy by Miss Nellic King, announced the entrance of the bridal party.

Four little flower girls, Misses May and Helen Hubbard, necess of the programs.

Four little Hower girls, Misses May and Helen Hubbard, necess of the groom, and Margaret and Martha Swormstedt, sisters of the bride, wearing dainty frocks of white mustin triumed with rose pink ribbons and carrying baskets of nink chrysanthenums, appeared first in the doorway on the left of the change!

They were followed by the two maids They were followed by the two maids of honor, Miss Hubbard, niece of the groom, and Miss Swormstedt, sister of the bride, who were attired in gowns of Dresden silk, one of rose pink and one of pale gold-color, with collars and girdles of green velvet. Their broad-brimmed hats of white felt were ornamented with bows of white sath ribbon, and they carried bonquets of delicately tinted chrysanthemums. At the moment of their appearance in the doorway the officiating minister, Rev. Dr. Patch, the groom, and Mr. Warren Young, best man, took their places in the chancel.

As the picturesque attendants grouped hemselves on either side, the bride advanced up the aisie, accompanied by her father, Mr. John Summerfield Sworm-

John Underwood, the proprietor of a line of oil tank wagons in this city, while drunk yesterday evening, assaulted ex-Mayer Strauss on King street for some funcied grievance he had against him. Mr. Strauss, in order to avoid trouble, went into Tancil & Shelton's barber shop, but Underwood followed him in there and renewed his assault. Officer Atkinson happened along just about this time, was called in, and took Underwood in charge, on the way to the station the man attempted to buck, and the officer had to use force.

The property owners along Fayette street The property owners along Fayette street are objecting stremously to the chiy council allowing the Washington Southern Railway to put another track down on that street. They claim that the use of the street by the railway company has greatly reduced the value of real estate along it, and it is very hard to find a tenant for a vacant house there. A number of the property owners will appear before the city street committee to singlet to protest against the use of the street by the railway company. For the privilege of occupying the street the Washington Southern Company agrees to puty it from end to end with senie modern payement.

the Washington Southern Company of to pave it from early on with some modern pavement.

The First Baptist Church, on Washington street, was hast night crowded to the doors by those who had assembled to witness the ornination of Mr. Witham T. Bailey to the Baptist maistry. The ceromony was conducted by Rev. Dr. Buller, of this city, assisted by other ministers. This is the beginning of a series of revival services in the church, which will hat several weeks.

The ladies of the M. Z. Church, South, have organized a Church Furnishing Society, whose objects are to raise funds to purchase carpets and other furniture for the new Southern Church which is to be erected in the spring. The ladies are already at work getting the funds.

It is reported that a boy named Samuel Bogers, living in the Francoia, Fairfax county, neighborhossi, was budly bitten by a rabid dog a few day sage.

QUARTERMASTER'S REPORT. Contract System for Supply of Horse Continues to Give Satisfaction.

The annual report of the Quartermaster General, showing the operations of the Quar termaster's Department of the Aim's for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895, has just been made to the Secretary of War.
